Dear Derrick:

It sounds as if your new aviation venture is very exciting. One thing is certain: You have an exceptionally broad aviation background, especially with all Citation models.

Since I had the privilege of flying with your dad for more than 30 years, I have known you from the time you were in grade school.

Having your dad as a mentor, earning an A & P license and then working at Cessna in the Citation Service Center and as a production test pilot has given you a wealth of experience that should clearly be beneficial to your customers.

Good luck with your new venture. I have every confidence that you will stay busy.

Sincerely yours,
